Atlantis

Critical Studies in Gender, Culture & Social Justice Études critiques sur le genre, la culture, et la justice

Ode to M. Night Shyamalan

donalee Moulton

Volume 43, Number 1, 2022

URI: https://id.erudit.org/iderudit/1096962ar DOI: https://doi.org/10.7202/1096962ar

See table of contents

Publisher(s) Mount Saint Vincent University

would saint vincent on

ISSN

1715-0698 (digital)

Explore this journal

Cite this document

Moulton, d. (2022). Ode to M. Night Shyamalan. Atlantis, 43(1), 78–79. https://doi.org/10.7202/1096962ar

érudit

This document is protected by copyright law. Use of the services of Érudit (including reproduction) is subject to its terms and conditions, which can be viewed online.

https://apropos.erudit.org/en/users/policy-on-use/

This article is disseminated and preserved by Érudit.

Érudit is a non-profit inter-university consortium of the Université de Montréal, Université Laval, and the Université du Québec à Montréal. Its mission is to promote and disseminate research.

https://www.erudit.org/en/

Atlantis: Critical Studies in Gender, Culture & Social Justice Issue 43.1 / 2022

Literary Work

Ode to M. Night Shyamalan

by donalee Moulton

Today, I became invisible.

This is my 20/20 superpower; uninvited, yet all too real.

A gradual metamorphosis, I see Now in hindsight: No meta physics or exploding world, No ringing of the bugle No senses tingling No deflecting bracelets to mark the occasion

A flash of time 60 years in the making

Here I stand sans mask and tights. Slightly stooped Laser-corrected vision Trying to untangle this web of confusion Yesterday on my daily planet people nodded as I walked by. They saw me. Apologized as they bumped me accidentally. Waved from across the street, parking lot, grocery aisle as if seeing me for the first time. There you are.

Little did they know My real identity Waiting to emerge Silently, relentlessly Without aid of alien spacecraft radioactive spider or amazon queen to coddle me into my new persona Today is August twenty-second.

A new me is sculpted From clay And tradition, expectation Indifference

Now I walk into rooms Unnoticed Cloaked in forceless fields Shielded from sight I see animated faces looking In my direction Hands at their sides Eyes focused elsewhere

Today I turned 62, or 58, 71 perhaps. Age is irrelevant once you are in visible

if only I were bulletproof donalee Moulton's poetry has appeared in Arc, The Queen's Quarterly, Prairie Fire, The Dalhousie Review, Carousel, Fireweed, and Whetstone, among others. She is a former editor of The Pottersfield Portfolio and Atlantic Books Today. donalee lives in Halifax happily surrounded by family, friends, pets, and poetry.