

'The view from here' - Anxiety and defences against anxiety in the provision of maternity care to one mother and baby

Nicola O'Sullivan

Volume 11, Number 1S, Supplement, 2024

Congress 2023

URI: <https://id.erudit.org/iderudit/1110263ar>

DOI: <https://doi.org/10.26443/ijwpc.v11i1.423>

See table of contents

Publisher(s)

McGill University Library

ISSN

2291-918X (digital)

Explore this journal

Cite this document

O'Sullivan, N. (2024). 'The view from here' - Anxiety and defences against anxiety in the provision of maternity care to one mother and baby. The International Journal of Whole Person Care, 11(1S), s61-s62.
<https://doi.org/10.26443/ijwpc.v11i1.423>

© Nicola O'Sullivan, 2024

This document is protected by copyright law. Use of the services of Érudit (including reproduction) is subject to its terms and conditions, which can be viewed online.

<https://apropos.erudit.org/en/users/policy-on-use/>

érudit

This article is disseminated and preserved by Érudit.

Érudit is a non-profit inter-university consortium of the Université de Montréal, Université Laval, and the Université du Québec à Montréal. Its mission is to promote and disseminate research.

<https://www.erudit.org/en/>

POSTER

‘THE VIEW FROM HERE’ – ANXIETY AND DEFENCES AGAINST ANXIETY IN THE PROVISION OF MATERNITY CARE TO ONE MOTHER AND BABY

Nicola O’Sullivan

Independent Social Care Consultant, Visiting Lecturer Tavistock and Portman NHS Foundation Trust and Trinity College, Dublin, Ireland
nicolacregan@hotmail.com

Keywords: Maternity care, Anxiety and defences

Being emotionally open in a maternity setting is a necessary part of the job of the midwife and consultant doctor. In fact, it is recognised as a key aspect of relationship-based work. However, it can be complex and uncertain, particularly in the face of a mother and baby who are separated through death at birth or serious illness at birth.

This paper is interested in exploring the necessary conditions for relating and reflecting in maternity settings when babies are born with life threatening illnesses. With particular emphasis on one case example from personal experience, this paper offers wisdom from the margins in the hope that it might contribute positively to thinking and learning about these experiences in frontline hospital settings. It will focus on how the intensity of the work with one mother and baby and the strength of emotion associated with that work disrupted the nurses' capacity to think.

Drawing on the classic work of Isabel Menzies Lyth (1968) and later Sebastian Kraemer (2015), the paper will consider the types of anxiety and defences present in the encounter and in the ongoing treatment of this mother and baby. The paper will explore how treatment and care was received by the mother and what might have enhanced that provision of care. ■