Canadian Labour Archives: Some Recent Acquisitions

Nancy Stunden

ARCHIVAL ACTIVITY in the field of labour records began only in the late 1960s in Canada and considerable progress has been made in a relatively short period of time. Most of the provinces now have at least one repository which has demonstrated an interest in the collection of historical records of the labour movement. A large amount of documentation, from a wide variety of organizations and individuals, has been identified for permanent preservation. This material is heavily used, not only by professional historians and students, but also by union members and freelance writers. As a result of the work of the various repositories and their supporters in the labour movement and academia, the archival message has been heard in many union offices across the country.

The 1980s present new challenges for Canadian labour archives. Coping with the enormous quantity of documentation generated by labour organizations today will be very difficult. Additional programmes, staff and financial resources are essential, but there is also pressing need for the implementation of basic records management procedures by the labour unions in order to make the archival process as productive and efficient as possible. While the bulk of the responsibility for the introduction of records management rests with the organizations, archives must provide leadership perhaps by conducting records surveys and by preparing model filing systems and disposal schedules. The need for greater consultation between the various repositories active in the labour field is easier to meet. The Association of Canadian Archivists is in the process of forming a Labour Archives Committee which should serve as a vehicle for communication and coordination between people working in this field. A more coordinated approach to individual unions, with as complete an "archival package" as possible, would make better use of scarce resources. Excessive duplication of certain types of documentation could be eliminated and standardized access policies for the records of the various offices of individual organizations might be developed. Greater knowledge of the collecting policies and holdings of repositories other than their own would also enable labour archivists to provide better reference service to researchers.

The following report notes some recent acquisitions of labour records in all parts of the country, with the exception of Quebec. It is drawn largely from a survey undertaken in January 1979 and from entries in the 1977-78 Supplement to the Union List of Manuscripts in Canadian Repositories. Researchers seeking information on earlier acquisitions in this field should refer to reports previously published in the Bulletin of the Committee on Canadian Labour History or to Archivaria, No. 4, 1977 which focused on labour and working-class archives. Labour records in Quebec have not been covered because the collecting strategy there has been to leave the historical records in the custody of the originating organization. However, the Bulletin of the Regroupement de chercheurs en histoire des travailleurs québécois frequently carries reports on the inventorying of labour records in Quebec. Unless otherwise noted, the records listed below are originals, rather than copies. Finally, no attempt has been made to indicate whether the collections have been processed by the repositories or whether there are any restrictions on their use. For up-to-date information on these matters, researchers should contact the institutions concerned.

I wish to thank those archivists across the country, whose work is reflected in the following report, for their assistance.

Public Archives of Canada

American Labour Union's Constitutions and Proceedings

Constitutions and proceedings of the American Federation of Labor, the Congress of Industrial Organizations, the AFL-CIO, 33 currently active unions and 60 defunct unions related to the active ones by merger, secession or absorption. Microfilm, 1836-1967, 204 reels. These are, of course, the proceedings of the international conventions of these Unions; however, Canadian officers and delegates frequently participate in the proceedings. Part II of this collection, which covers another 66 active and 90 inactive unions, is on order.

Arnold, Ernest F. (b. 1910)

Radio scripts, reports, employer leaflets and miscellaneous items relating to the campaign to organize workers at the T. Eaton Co. in Toronto, 1949-53, 4 cm.

Canadian Labour Congress (additional)

Files of Secretary-Treasurer William Dodge and of various Departments of the Congress dating mainly from the 1960s and 1970s. 40.35 m.

Canadian Railway Labour Association

Correspondence, reports, submissions and other documents of this Association, the legislative organization of railway unions in Canada, c. 1940-70, 5.8 m.

Canadian Railway Mail Clerks Federation

Minute Book of the London District Association, 1933-64, 7.5 cm.

Canadian Union of Public Employees

Files of President Stanley Little, Executive Assistants to the President F.K. Eady and A. Millard, the Research Department and the Ontario Regional Office, c. 1944-1976, c. 22.3 cm. Included are some records of CUPE's predecessors: the National Organization of Civic, Utility and Electrical Workers, the National Union of Public Service Employees and the National Union of Public Employees.

Cohen, J.L. (1897-1950)

Case files and miscellaneous documents of this prominent Toronto labour and civil rights lawyer, 1923-51, 10.5 m. During the late 1920s and the Great Depression Cohen defended many Communists and he acted on behalf of many of the men interned during World War II. He also served as counsel for many of the industrial unions including the United Autoworkers, United Electrical Workers, Steelworkers, Rubber Workers, Mine-Mill and the Canadian Seamen's Union. Throughout his career Cohen campaigned for progressive social and labour legislation and he served as an advisor in these matters to unions and, on occasion, to governments. All of these facets of his work are documented in these Papers, as well as some of the mysterious circumstances surrounding his disbarment in 1946 and premature death.

Finnish Organization of Canada Collection

The FOC was the main organization of the left-wing Finnish community. Included in this extensive collection (1891-1976, 29 m.) are the headquarters records of the FOC, its predecessors (the Finnish Socialist Organization of Canada and the Finnish Section of the Communist Party), and interim mutations (such as the Finnish Canadian Democratic League created to circumvent suppression of the FOC in 1940). Many records of their District Committees, Locals and other affiliates (for example, youth, women's and sports organizations) are also included. Activities such as Finnish-Canadian working-class theatre and publishing are well documented. The FOC also preserved historical records of other related organizations, including some unions, political parties and cooperatives, and this documentation is included in this collection. While most of the material is in Finnish, there is English-language material throughout the records. The collection also includes some good photographs and documentation in other media.

International Association of Machinists

Canadian Office Records, 1901-76, 19 m.

With the exception of a few isolated documents, these files pertain to the 1950s and 1960s. Earlier records of the Canadian Vice-President of this important craft union have not survived. Major series include representatives' files, local lodge and district lodge files, subject files and political action files.

Local Lodge Records, 1908-67, 90 cm.

Some records of defunct lodges at Ottawa, Cornwall, St. Thomas and Dunnville. Pre-World War II records are mainly financial.

International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America

Miscellaneous documents accumulated by W.J. Miller, who was the first president of the UE local at the Phillips plant in Brockville and subsequently led the break-away movement. Miller was the IUE Eastern Ontario Field Representative from 1954 to 1973.

Knights of Labor Collection

The acquisition of the microfilm copy of the Powderly and Hayes Papers from Microfilming Corporation of America was reported in 1976 but recently a comprehensive index of items pertaining to Canadian history was prepared for the Public Archives by Russell G. Hann. This index provides the name of the relevant correspondents of Powderly and Hayes, their location and the numbers of the local and district assemblies to which the correspondence refers, in addition to the dates of the letters.

Labour Council of Metropolitan Toronto (additional)

Files of the Council, covering all aspects of its work from 1956-71, 7.8 m.

MacDonald, J. Ramsay

Photocopies of letters to British Labour Party leader Ramsay MacDonald and his wife from people in Canada, 1901-10, 53 pp. The letters touch on a variety of subjects including politics in Canada and Britain, labour organization, the suffrage movement and working conditions of women. The most informative letters are those of Bertha Merrill Burns of the Social Democratic Party in Vancouver, 1906-08, 7 pp. and W.J. Turner, an English immigrant who ended up working for the CPR in Winnipeg, 1906-09, 16 pp. Copied from originals in the MacDonald Papers in the Public Records Office.

Ontario Federation of Labour

Convention files, executive board and council minutes and reports, auditors reports, files of President David Archer and Secretary-Treasurer Terry Meagher, Education Department records, subject files, and publications, 1946-76, 10 m.

Ottawa Civic Employees Association

Scattered records including some minutes of the Association, which was founded in 1933, 1933-38, 10 cm. Also included are some records, 1925-38, 5 cm., of the Civic Water Works Employees Union, notably minutes between 1925 and 1927, and of the Civic Employees Federal Labour Union No. 15.

Ottawa and District Labour Council

Allied Trades and Labour Association, 1899-1957, 2.44 m.

Minutes 1906-57; executive reports; correspondence; subject files and other records.

Ottawa and District Labour Council, 1956-1968, 3.16 m.

Minutes and other records including some conciliation and arbitration files.

Parent — Rowley

Records; 1939-69, 3.4 m., accumulated by Madeleine Parent and R. Kent Rowley, most of which relate to the period from 1943 to 1952 in which they led the United Textile Workers of America in Canada. The records document the organization and progress of textile workers in Quebec (including the major strikes of 1946 and 1952), the Ottawa Valley and, to a lesser extent, southern Ontario and the Maritimes. They also reveal some of the politics in the UTWA and the CIO Textile Workers Union, which culminated in the dismissal of Parent and Rowley by the International President, and provide some information on the contemporary Quebec labour scene in general.

A large number of photographs have been deposited in the National Photography Collection.

Spector, J.J. (b. 1902)

Scattered notes, correspondence and legal documents pertaining to Spector's work as counsel for the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union in Montreal, 1922-50, 20 cm.

Textile Workers Union of America

National Office Records, 1948-77, c. 20 m.

Files, mainly from the 1960s and early 1970s, of the national office of the largest union of textile workers in Canada. A full range of files has been deposited including those on the joint boards and local unions, organizing campaigns, organizers' reports, files on relations with other unions, and subject files.

South-Western Ontario and Toronto Joint Boards, c. 1945-67, c. 14 m.

Files, mainly from the 1960s, containing information on contract negotiations and local union administration.

Thompson, Margot

Margot Thompson was editor of the Canadian edition of Steel Labour from 1947 to 1968. Correspondence and notes documenting her equal pay dispute with the United Steelworkers, 1950-68; letters from Eileen Tallman Sufrin, most of which were written during the year she spent studying the Italian labour movement, 1957-59; letters from C.H. Millard describing his work as Director of Organization of the International Confederation of Free Trade Unions and other miscellaneous documents, 1951-61, 1964-65. Total extent, 2.54 cm.

Toppan, Marino

Marino Toppan was active in the organization of construction workers in Toronto. His papers include correspondence, memoranda, clippings and transcripts of radio broadcasts, 1960-70, 29 cm.

United Steelworkers of America

National Office Records, n.d., 1902-32, 1937-76, 17.4 m.

Also available on microfilm at McMaster University Archives.

The major file series is that maintained by the Canadian Director which provides a fairly complete record of the National Office of the Union. The swoc and early CIO documentation which has survived in this Collection (8 cm.) should be used in conjunction with that in the papers of USWA International Officers held at Pennsylvania State University Archives (see below) and that preserved by the Canadian Office of the United Electrical Workers. Other important sub-series of the Directors' files include the following: Canadian conferences 1938-64; basic steel industry 1942-50; Doeco National Committee 1957-69; Dominion Bridge Co. 1947-60; Gaspé Copper Strike 1953-67; and District and Area Offices 1942-73.

Also included are files of the Public Relations and Education Departments, a valuable set of scrapbooks of newspaper clippings 1940-72, Steel Labour (Canadian Edition) 1938-70 and publications of some USWA locals.

Of note are some files of the Research Dept. of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers 1944-67, 2.4 m. These consist mainly of collective agreements, conciliation and arbitration files, files on occupational diseases and accidents, and submissions to the Federal and Provincial Governments. These files add to the main collection of Mine-Mill historical records in the custody of the University of British Columbia Library. Special Collections Division and the records of Local 598 at the Archives of Ontario.

The National Office of the USWA also deposited approximately 220 historical photographs in the PAC.

Papers of various International Officers of the USWA pertaining to Canada, 2,625 pp., 1939-65. Microfilmed from originals at the Pennsylvania State University Archives.

The most extensive set of files (1,843 pp.) are those of David J. McDonald, Secretary-Treasurer from 1936 to 1952 and President from 1952 to 1965. These include important documentation on the 'Ontario Executive' during the swoc period and files on each Canadian district. Also included are some files from the Papers of President Philip Murray, Vice-President Howard Hague, and Tom Murray, Assistant to the Secretary-Treasurer.

Interviews with various Canadian leaders of the USWA conducted under the auspices of the Oral History Project of Pennsylvania State University, 292 pp., microfilm.

United Transportation Union (est. 1969)

Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, 1886-1974, 25.9 m.

Files of the the two Canadian Vice-Presidents (Protective and Legislative) primarily from the period during and after World War II. Also of note are the files of the General Chairmen for the CNR (both Eastern and Central Regions) and the CPR. The documentation covers the full range of Brotherhood activities including collective bargaining, handling of grievances and relations with other railway unions.

Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, 1897-1971, 4.25 m.

Files of the Canadian Vice-President relating mainly to collective bargaining and files of the General Chairman CNR (Central Region) pertaining to the run-through dispute. Again, most of the material is from the post-1940 period.

Walsh, William

Documentation relating mainly to Walsh's work since the late 1960s as a consultant and negotiator for various unions including the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, the Service Employees International Union, the Canadian Union of Public Employees and the Ontario Nurses Association, c. 1965-78, 5.4 m.
